High School Presents Band, Glee Club Concert

Those who didn't attend the High School Band and Glee Club concert last Thursday evening missed a fine performance.

The six majorettes opened the program with a nice exhibition of baton twirling.

The band under the direction of LeRoy Christian offered a varied selection and rendered an especially fine impersonation of a storm as a special feature of "Stormy Weather," and for those who like a muted cornet, and we do, Tom Hilton played a very fine solo of the number with the band.

Miss Sue Giesling, clarinetist and Miss Phyllis Ziebel, piano accompanist did a bang up job of "Begin the Beguine," after which Miss Ruth Decker rendered a baritone solo of "Aristie" with piano accompaniment by Miss Shirley Souders.

A solo "A Dream is a Wish Your Heart Makes" was very nicely done by Miss Joann Lovely, soprano, with piano accompaniment.

Interwoven with the band numbers the Girls Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Roy Milnes, sang a program of songs in a very professional manner. This is the first year for the group and we feel that Mrs. Milnes has veritably pulled the traditional bunny out of the hat. Any way we were pleasantly surprised with the way those "girls" sang, and their little piano accompanist, Miss Joan Andrews, did her part in a big way, too. No, sir, we don't have to apologize for either our band or glee club.

When the full list of names of band and glee club personnel was printed in last week's paper the name of David Olson was omitted, sorry.

Cancer Quota Half Subscribed

"Nine out of ten persons in the cancer movement," Mrs. Van Smith of Lake Margrethe, observed today, "have had a personal brush with cancer—in them or their husbands, wives, mothers, fathers and occasionally even in their children. It is these people, volunteering their services, who are leading the lay crusade against the disease."

Mrs. Van Smith is the commander of the Crawford County unit of the American Cancer Society which is conducting its annual fund-raising and educational drive in Crawford County now. The county quota is $800, of which around $150 has already been raised according to Earl Burns, drive chairman. All this work is being done by volunteers.

Mrs. Smith remarked that although there is still some reluctance to talk about it, many volunteers now speak out freely and are among the most zealous workers in the fight against cancer. She quoted one such volunteer as saying:

"It is terribly important that cancer be recognized early, and if you pay attention to the danger signals, you have a chance of letting a doctor do his most effective work."

It isn't too late to give your donation. Give or mail your contribution to Earl Burns, drive chairman, now.

Ex-Gov. Kelly Speaks Here

By Rowena Trowbridge

A progressive, sane, enlightened government is the wish of the aroused voters of the State of Michigan.

Ex-Governor Harry E. Kelly said in Grayling Saturday, "There is greater interest than ever before in a state-wide campaign and the coming election promises to be the greatest in the history of the State."

There is an awakening of the people toward their responsibility as voters and an increased awareness of the great need for the people's voice being heard by their governmental representatives, is Mr. Kelly's contention.

"Always before," Mr. Kelly continued, "the business man has felt that it is poor business not to be interested in politics. Now he feels that it is poor business not to be interested in politics."

The people must take a personal interest in their government and must voice their opinions through their votes and through their choice of representatives is Mr. Kelly's conviction.

"We must have a government of all the people not any part of the people," he reaffirmed.

In his swing around the State, Mr. Kelly has been organizing "Kelly for Governor" clubs on a county level.

"It is only on this level," he said, "that I get on an intimate footing with the voters and get acquainted with their problems and interests."

Though his platform has not been completely formulated Mr. Kelly related the stand he made while still governor, on the question of road building and maintenance.

"I said then and I say again that Michigan roads are of the greatest concern to all of us. An expanded program of road building is vital to everyone and should be financed through an increased (Continued on Page Eight)

The meeting was attended by representatives from various civic organizations as well as other interested individuals. The program, started at 10 A. M. and carried well on to 5 P. M. In the afternoon, a tour of the various cottages of the Hospital under the supervision of two lady guides was well attended, some not caring to attend.

The Traverse City State Hospital which services thirty-nine counties in the upper half of the Lower Peninsula, as well as the other mental institutions of the state are being subjected to a cut in their appropriations for the fiscal year of 1950.

The Probate Judges in attendance, which included Ray F. Clement, Judge of Probate of Crawford County, after a general discussion unanimously adopted the following resolution and forwarded a copy of the same signed by all Judges present to the Governor and Representatives and Senators from their respective districts.

Following is a copy of the resolution:

"We, the undersigned, Judges of Probate, are alarmed at the constantly decreasing facilities of the State of Michigan for the care of the mentally ill, the feeble minded and the epileptic. We feel that these individuals have first call on the officials of the State of Michigan, its citizens, and their resources."

"It seems incredible that the state government should contemplate a lessened service to these most unfortunate people who cannot help themselves. We understand by the press and talks among ourselves and others that a considerable cut is proposed in funds allocated to the institutions serving these people."

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that the undersigned do hereby protest any cut in the current levels of appropriations for state institutions serving the mentally ill, the feeble minded and the epileptic. Such diminution in funds would cast many of these unfortunate back upon the counties, their relatives, if any they have, neither of which have any facilities to care for them when refused by the institutions designed for their treatment and care because of lack of funds."

200 Planes Attend Third Annual Grayling Dawn Patrol

Weather Cuts In On Expected Number

By Fay Boveo

About 200 planes arrived at McNamara Memorial Airport, Grayling on Sunday morning for the Third Annual Dawn Patrol to be held at the Grayling airfield in spite of a twelve to fifteen mile an hour wind and temperatures that hovered down close to the freezing point.

Breakfast was served from 6 A. M. to 11 A. M. to over 400 pilots, their passengers, and local residents. There were plenty of pancakes and sausage and hot coffee to greet the shivering fly enthusiasts as they landed at the Grayling field.

A large group of local people turned out in spite of the cold weather to welcome the flyers to Grayling.

Guests of the Aero Club who flew in for the Dawn Patrol were Major Ralph Marble, Operations Officer of the 171st Pursuit Squadron, Michigan Air Guard from Romulus, ex-governor Kim Sigler and his daughter, Madeline, and several others, from Lansing, Mort Neff, of Neff Radio Productions, and Paul Magnuson, of Detroit. Other guests of the Aero Club who were also in attendance for the Dawn Patrol were Colonel Donald Armstrong, and Captain John Mead, of Romulus, Don Gillis, of the Detroit Times and Andy Munch, from the EMTA, Bay City.

Major Marble arrived in Grayling Saturday afternoon, piloting an F-84 Jet fighter which was put on exhibition Sunday morning. Immediately after Major Marble's take-off Sunday he performed several stunts with the jet fighter for the benefit of the crowd.

Mayor Proclaims Hospital Day

WHEREAS, Good hospital care is a vital part of the health needs of every community, and

WHEREAS, the Mercy Hospital has dedicated itself to providing this important care to the community, and

WHEREAS, the continued high standards of hospital care are possibly only through the community's understanding, appreciation and support of the Mercy Hospital,

THEREFORE, I urge all citizens of Grayling to join the people of the world on May 12th in observing National Hospital Day and to show their appreciation to hospitals whose dedicated services are so important to all of us.

Signed,
A. L. Roberts, Mayor.

Due to the overcrowded condition of Mercy Hospital and also to the fact that patients are dismissed at a much earlier date than formerly and while at the hospital, it would not be well to have people passing through the rooms of sick patients, it will not be possible to have an "open house" at Mercy Hospital on Hospital Day this year.

The date of May 12, was selected as an appropriate date, since it was the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale, whose pioneer service during the Crimean War led to the improvement of the hospital system in England and well all over America.

The initial Hospital Day had the endorsement of the President of the United States, then Warren Harding, as well as such dignitaries as General John Pershing and many governors, mayors and other public figures. Every successive president since Harding has publicly commended hospitals on National Hospital Day.

Basic Conservation Law Still Applicable

There seems to be a general belief that the recent Supreme Court decision invalidated all conservation laws. We still have the same basic laws that we have always had and they will be enforced to the best of our ability," states M. K. Summers, Field Administrator, District Supervisor, District No. 7. Mio. The Supreme Court decision only made it illegal for Conservation Officers to use certain methods for obtaining evidence.

Conservation Officers function under Act 192, Public Acts of 1929, which was not affected by the Supreme Court decision. This act delegates to the Director of Conservation or any other officer appointed by him the authority to arrest without warrant any person who violates in the presence of the officer any of the laws which protect game, fish and other natural resources. Authority is provided for any officer to seize any hunting or fishing equipment or other appliances used in violation of the law. They will possess the authority to serve warrants and make searches with a search warrant.

Any hindrance or interference with a Conservation officer in the performance of his duties under law is classified as a misdemeanor and is punishable as such.

Our Foreign Policy

One of the most interesting recent books on Russia is called "The Police State: What You Want to Know About the Soviet Union." Written by Craig Thompson, a former Moscow Correspondent of Time and Life, and published by E. P. Dutton, it gives small comfort to those who believe that some kind of fair and workable agreement can now be achieved between Russia and this country. Mr. Thompson is absolutely convinced that the Kremlin is hell-bent on the political and economic enslavement of the world and that it is not interested in half a loaf. Of the Russian leaders he says, "To them, compromise is only a stratagem, a device to fool the enemy and gain a more advantageous position." In other words, the part of wisdom is to view every Soviet act and policy—no matter how harmless or even conciliatory it may seem to be—with the utmost suspicion.

Here Mr Thompson is in obvious agreement with the views of Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Mr. Acheson's recent speeches have all reflected a deep pessimism, and a firm and reasoned feeling that further negotiations with the Kremlin bosses—even if they took place on the top level between Stalin and Truman—could not possibly do any good, and that, even, they might do great harm by producing a sense of complacency and false security among the people. Whether this feeling is right or wrong, the present foreign policy of the U. S. government is based upon it.

If we are to accept this reasoning, and if we are to win the cold war, we must have a strong and stable policy and the strength to back it up. The most reasoned criticism of President Truman's past and present foreign policy is that it has often consisted of big words which we could not possibly justify with deeds. To make matters worse, in the view of many, the policy has on occasion been changed and modified for strictly political purposes.

BRIGHT NEW TOUCH TO A BIG OLD BEAUTY
Can something new have? That's right—the gleaming two-spoke now adorns the fenders of this ROADMASTER Riviera Sedan. As extra touch of distinction that's yours as a standard item.

What's the secret of the "UNRUFFLED" RIDE?

SOME car makers say springs make the ride—and so we give every Buick four of the soft, gentle coil springs practically all cars use on front wheels only.

Some say the drive is important—how power is transmitted to the rear wheels.

We agree—and use a torque-tube drive, that takes up all the thrust, freeing rear springs of driving pulsation.

Some stress tires—so you'll find low-pressure casings on every Buick, mounted on our own kind of Safety-Ride rims. Some play up shock absorbers—we make ours fast, soft and sure in action, to wash out all "after-bounce."

Then there are frames—and car weight—and engine mountings, which on Buick are a very special kind used nowhere else.

They're all important—yet the plain truth is no one of these things—or two or three—gives a ride you can truly call "unruffled."

We feel it takes all of them—springs, tires, shock absorbers, drive, engine mountings—carefully and precisely brought into balance with each other.

You can see why we think so in any Buick—SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER.

You can feel it on cobblestones and car tracks, washboard gravel and weather-pocked macadam, country lane and city street. You even feel it on boulevards, which grow still smoother when you travel them in a Buick—especially when it has Dynaflo Drive.

So we would like you to try a ride that is truly "unruffled." Free of harshness—undisturbed by jounce and jitter—level—steady-going—smooth.

Just ask any Buick dealer for a chance to try out any Buick. You'll find it "the ride of a lifetime"—and the buy of a lifetime too!

Dynaflo Drive is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SPECIAL and SUPER models.

FOUR-WAY POWERPOINT

This rugged front end (1) sets the style note, (2) saves on repair costs—vertical bars are individually replaceable, (3) avoids "lock" home, (4) makes parking and garaging.

Only Buick has Dynaflo—and with it goes:

HIGHER COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (Now F-263 engine in SUPER models.) NEW-PATENT STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD fender, taper-through fenders, "double bubble" taillights • WIDE-ANGLE VISIONITY, close-up road view both forward and back • TRAFFIC-HANDY EYE, loss over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • ULTRA-WIDE STAYE CRACKS between the axles • SOFT QUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube • WIDE ARRAY OF MODELS with Body by Fisher.

Letters To The Editor

Mio, Michigan.
April 12, 1939.

To the Editors:
Gentlemen:
This is an open letter for publication and is submitted for the purpose of bringing before the usual reader some questions involved in the political field of thought and action that should be discussed by more than the press and radio. It is not with the idea all will agree with me in what follows, but that some constructive and practical equations may be resolved by frank and open discussion of problems before the people of the State of Michigan at this time especially.

As we listen to and read items bearing on the different angles, and learn the opinions of various politicians, so called, on questions of public import there is so much conflict in the reasoning that sometimes the average citizen finds himself in the absurd position of trying to justify his own thoughts, which, in the main, are not influenced by partisan trends as it is with those so largely publicized. However, as one of those average citizens, I wish to submit a few of my own which follow:

I believe with many others that a constitutional amendment calling for a regular session of the State Legislature should be adopted by the electorate. As it now stands it provides a means for too much argument and partisan bickering to be politically healthy. Politics (The Science of Government) is by common usage resolved, not into a science, but into a selfish race for public office and exchange of personalities. A regular annual session would make it possible for a body of legislators to act without any strings attached by any one man, such as the Governor, except by his veto, and even that may be overcome if the reasons for his veto are not sound in the opinion of the two bodies of the legislature.

The Governor, by calling special sessions, is often subjected to error by over zealous personal advisors and special investigators to say nothing about his own tendency to err — that being only human.

I object to the corporation tax on the basis that if I need the products of a corporation I will have to assume an increased burden of cost, which will inevitably be added to the cost to the consumer by the corporations thus taxed. The argument that a tax on corporations thus imposed will not mean an increase in cost is futile, because corporations are going to keep earning to stockholders, wherever possible up to as near standard as they can, and where there are no stockholders the corporations are not going to assume that extra burden of additional corporation tax. It has been stated here and there that Michigan corporations pay less corporation tax than in most any other state. That is no argument. It only tends to create a vicious circle for the imposing of still other taxes which ultimately the public will have to pay in a sense it is taxation without representation. If one person commits an error and gets away with it does it justify others to commit the same error?

The Governor recommends an appropriation from the State General Fund of $16,500,000.00 for immediate use on roads. The Legislature apparently wish to increase the gas tax by 2c per gallon on the theory that it will not increase the cost of gasoline to the public because the price of gasoline is fixed by the industry as a central level and the overall cost includes the tax. They cite instances where this has happened. If such is the case why not compromise? Get an appropriation from the general fund in an amount deemed necessary to meet present emergencies and increase the gas tax by the contemplated 2c, paying back to the general fund the amount borrowed. Then the gas tax can revert back automatically to the channels for which it has been levied.

Why should the general public be required to pay taxes to support strikers in industry? They strike to force support for some real or fantastic cause. In either case they tacitly assume the penalty of the "No Pay Envelope" for the duration of the strike. It seems justifiable that they support themselves during the interim of the strike instead of summing that the taxpayers will pay their support and that of their families, through Social Welfare aid and other means which have been so terribly misused in large centers of population in the past. Federal and State governments have pampered labor to a degree that can only result in the downfall of union organizations if continued, for the reason that government participation, favorable in most every instance, does encourage labor to more frequent strikes and rebellion against business in general. There must come a time when business itself will rebel and perhaps in many instances close their business until things adjust themselves so that they can proceed with some idea that their invested capital will return them adequate dividends. At no time in history have wages reached the peak they have now, and still labor places the bite for more and more wages and different forms of compensation. The ever increasing spiral. There will come a time when business will say "This far but no farther."

Then too, the buying public whose incomes are not keeping pace with advancing costs, will have to retrench, consequently sales will be reduced until depression or recession, whatever you wish to call it, becomes the order of the day. It has happened before and can happen again for history seems to repeat itself. I do not say this because I am entirely opposed to unions. I, rather, think and believe they can be of great benefit providing they consider with reason and comprehension business problems; ex-

Southeast Asia Supplies Needs

Over 90% of all the rubber grown in the world comes from billions of rubber trees in Southeast Asia. On rubber depends modern travel and communication—including automobiles, trucks, planes, telephones and radios.

Recent events have turned the spotlight on Southeast Asia, stronghold of democracy in the East and the world's chief source of a raw material on which modern civilization depends—natural rubber.

A scant 70 years ago not a single rubber tree grew in this entire area, nearly as large as Europe. Today there are millions of acres of neat rows of high-yielding rubber trees which supply nearly all world needs for this elastic material. The United States alone used over 600,000 tons of it in 1948.

In addition to the large plantations or "estates," which are financed and managed by European and American companies, there are over 400,000 small one-family rubber farms in Malaya alone which supply a "cash crop" for native Malays, Chinese, and Indian growers.

A booklet called "Natural Rubber and You" has recently been published by the Natural Rubber Bureau, Dept. N200, 1631 K St., N.W., Washington 6, D.C. It shows in photographs how natural rubber is grown in Southeast Asia. You can obtain a free copy by writing the Bureau.

hitting a willingness to co-operate to the end that a justifiable settlement be made free from rancor and ill will. Nor do I accuse labor of being wholly to blame for spiraling prices. Much of the censor can be laid at the door of governments.

There are fine examples throughout the country where management and unions are co-operating to their mutual benefits. These could be studied and the best idea used to reach a commendable understanding between the parties at interest, but there seems to be a latent lack of co-operation — sometimes by both parties.

Some of the labor sweetening laws could be revoked and a fairer basis for adjusting differences established without the disastrous strikes which contribute so largely to the army of unemployed for which the public now taxed to the limit, have to pay in addition to their support while on strike. The sticker is, however, that the unions control a large vote and it takes a lot of intestinal fortitude to do or say anything that will seriously interrupt the even tenor of that vote—sacrificing politics to personal desire an disadvantage.

Small business, so called, does not have much of a chance with State and Federal taxes continually mounting, and other expensive overhead costs climbing, due to the aforementioned "vicious circle," for every time a union strikes in steel, coal or business and manufacturing, every time a subsidy is paid, every time produce is bought by government and sold way below market prices, a large part of that expense is paid by the fellow who has no union, no subsidy payments, nor any thing else wherein he can come within government patronage. Yet he pays.

An age old objection has always gone up when improved machinery in manufacturing is about to be installed. Union President, Phillip Murray, has recently let go a trade along that line, because, as he says, it throws men out of employment. No doubt but what it does displace some temporarily, but in the end more men are employed than before such installation, more goods are produced, greater markets are secured and greater employment insured. We are all continually facing readjustments. It denotes progress.

The statement by Mr. Murray seems somewhat selfish in concept, because there is no thought expressed about the hardships imposed on employees when a strike is in progress and losing money at a rate they cannot re-earn over years of continuous labor, nor does he consider the possibility of changing markets which call for greater development and more advanced quality of plant and plant facilities, and the related changes made necessary thereby in order to meet an ever changing competitive field.

Should business seriously consider his stand and take it whole, then Mr. Murray would be using his feet or driving a horse and carriage instead of riding in a high priced automobile or an aeroplane.

The cry politics is resounding down the corridors of the Legislative Halls in Lansing these days. It is the old familiar cry. Yet it is not politics. It is only a selfish, partisan call to the voting public.

"Me first for I have better ideas than the other fellow." That is not the Science of Government, but infers a fear complex. A matter now comes before us and that is the question of liquor distribution. It is regrettable that Michigan should be in the liquor business at all. It costs more to prosecute infractions and maintain prisons for liquor violators and the encroachments on society because of liquor than all the revenue from such a source can pay, to say nothing of the consequent loss of life.

Of course, the stock answer to this is that "it would not stop the liquor traffic and the state can use the money. In a small sense that may be true but unjustifiable. Jesus Christ was betrayed for thirty pieces of silver and the betrayer committed suicide. What is Michigan coming to with its thirty pieces of silver, for it is betrayal almost in the same sense and non-drinkers are continually subjected to embarrassment by encountering ribald scenes in stores, drug stores and restaurants, and my state, Michigan, is a party to all of the resulting sordidness. I would applaud a law that it would make it impossible for women with minor children up to eighteen years of age be prohibited to act as bar maids or waitresses where intoxicating liquors are sold, stored for sale, given away or furnished in any manner.

Early Diagnosis Increases Probability of Cure

CANCER CONTROL IS UP TO YOU

ACT NOW

Cancer, detected in early stages, has a greatly increased chance of cure, the American Cancer Society points out. The 1950 Cancer Crusade of the ACS stresses this theme in its double-pronged drive of public education and fund-raising.

"We could sell Dusty," Sylvia said. Joe stared at her. "You don't mean that!" Dusty thumped his tail on the floor and pricked his ears. There was, he hoped, a possibility of being taken for a walk up the slope behind the house where rabbits frequently ran and offered no end of excitement.

Sylvia laughed nervously. "Of course I don't. I was only joking. We wouldn't sell Dusty for a million dollars." She reached down and twisted one of Dusty's flopping ears around her forefinger. Dusty lolled his tongue and sighed in contentment. Next to chasing rabbits, there was nothing he liked better than having his ears twisted, unless it was hunting a glove or an old shoe or pocketbook that either Joe or Sylvia had hidden.

Joe lay awake that night and thought about what Sylvia had said. He felt guilty and ashamed, but when you haven't enough to eat and you own some property that would bring an easy thousand dollars on the open market, you can't help thinking about it.

Sylvia's aunt had given them Dusty the week before they left for Hollywood. He was seven weeks old, a pure bred Springer spaniel, black as coal and intelligent as two ordinary human beings.

The next morning Joe decided to go down onto the boulevard. Sometimes on the boulevard he met someone he knew and would get talking and perhaps get a line on something. He put Dusty on his leash and started out.

Joe turned down Vito street. Just below Solma, some children were playing on a lawn. One of them was crying. Joe stopped to see what the trouble was. A little girl had lost her rag doll. It was somewhere about, but he couldn't find it. Dusty licked the little girl's hand. She cooed happily and patted his head. The other children growled.

ed about. Joe unsnapped Dusty's leash, held the little girl's skirt to his nose and said: "Go find!"

Dusty let out a yip and went bounding away. Two minutes later he came back, holding in his mouth the rag doll. The little girl clapped her hands.

"Smart dog," said a voice. Joe turned. A car had stopped at the curb. A small round man with a friendly face had emerged onto the sidewalk. Joe nodded. "Pure bred Springer. They're all smart." "Are they?" said the little man. His eyes twinkled. "Like to sell him?" Joe said nothing. He felt a queer prickling at the base of his skull. "Like to sell him?" said the man again. "How much?" said Joe, not looking at him. "Nine hundred."

Joe thought of Sylvia. She was probably hungry. She'd be hungrier tonight. The only alternative was city relief. A man has his pride. He remembered the hug Sylvia had given Dusty before they left. He thought of the way Dusty would nip at their toes when they were getting dressed in the morning.

Ho-shook his head. "No!" he said. "No! Not for twice that amount."

The rotund man laughed. "Then how about hiring him? You, too, of course. We're making a picture that requires a cute dog who will go find things that have been hidden."

Joe threw up his head. "What?" "Think it over," said the rotund man. "Pay would be $25 a day. Here's my card." He smiled. "Hope I didn't insult you with that nine hundred offer. Your dog's worth two thousand, if a cent. Never saw a pure black Springer with those lines. So sure to look me up. If $25 doesn't suit you, we can probably talk terms."

Joe stood on the curb and watched the black limousine rocade. He glanced at the card, then down at Dusty. Dusty was watching him expectantly. He wanted to walk some more. Joe slipped the card into his pocket and started up Vito street at a pace that rather surprised Dusty.

Concluding the old timberlooker's story, "Bunkhouse Justice."

"One thing future Michigan-ers never ought to do," the old timberlooker said, "is forget what kind-o stock they come from. If you could-a stood with me on that Friday afternoon. I think it was the first of September, about, an' watched the faces of them settlers when Zeke Thorne an' George Jenks drove off you'd-a-been proud. A man or a nation's judged by the way they can take it, an' them settlers had sure took it. There was Bonnie Parker dead in his house with the hull-neighborhood in mournin', their logs gone up in smoke an' winter comin' on. They was mad all right, they'd been tricked an' made fools of, but here's what they done to show what they was made of.

First the little deputy sheriff he got us all back in the bunkhouse an' sent for the hunchback boy from the cookshanty, an' had him tell his story over. Half a hundred men lined up on them benches an' took time to hear howcome he'd accused John-ny an' me of burnin' the railways an' killin' Bonnie. The way the schaggly little deputy handled it, it didn't take long. The boy was crying an' tryin' to hide behind his big knotty hands. He was a pathetic sight. His head was too big for the rest of 'im, an' his long arms an' legs an' crooked back was all out-o-proportion. "What's yer full name?" the deputy asked, gettin' out his pad o' paper an' pencil an' the boy answered "Alexander Jenks." Even then there wasn't a eyebrow batted. "George Jenks is yer father, an' Willie an' Charlie's yer brothers huh?" the little deputy asked without a raise in his voice. "H'old are ye?" "Nineteen."

It was then that the boy started screaming. "I done it!" he cried, an' two men had to hold him down. "Bonnie had Willie down! Charlie got up an' run away an' left him! I had the butcher-knife I brought from the cookshanty! I run up behind Bonnie an' let 'im have it!" Well, there it was. The boy was beside himself, an' kind hands laid him in a bunk an' covered him up.

"One time there was a little oak grub," the little deputy said, "a-growin' down on the pine flats. A squirrel had carried a acorn down off a oak ridge a long time before an' buried it, as sometimes squirrels will."

The little misplaced acorn couldn't help but grow, cause that was it's nature, but on account of the tall pines shaded it an' sapped up all the moisture with their deeper roots it didn't have a chance to grow right, ever to become a oak tree. We can blame the squirrel, or the tall pine trees, but it don't get us no place. This boy ain't a killer, he needs doctorin' to help heal his defects. I'll hook up Ronnie's team this afternoon an' take him out an' get him in the right hands to get him in a institution where they take care o-such things. Maybe he's got a little money comin' from Bonnie, I don't know. If you fellows wanted to pass round a hat fer 'im to start 'im on 'is way, I think it'd be a right kind deed, an' I think Bonnie's want it that way."

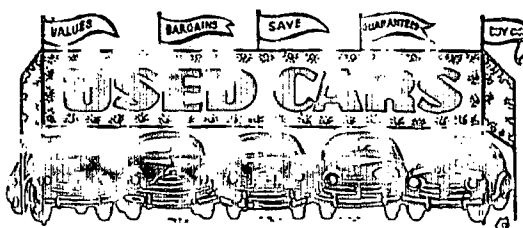

"Broke as they was, every man had somethin' to throw in the hat," the old-timberlooker said—"it's at times like that you know you're standin' among men."

Plan Start On New Ferry Dock

The initial step toward construction of a new Michigan State Ferry dock at St. Ignace will be taken May 13 in Lansing when the State Highway Department determines low bidders on excavating for the basin required by the dock. Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler announces. The dock is to be built on the site of the old furnace dock, approximately 1 1/4 miles south of the present state dock and when completed will reduce the ferry route distance between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace by 1.6 miles or a total of 3.2 miles for a round trip, with a time saving of 10 to 12 minutes one way or 20 to 24 minutes per round trip.

The present St. Ignace dock is inadequate to meet traffic demands with only one of the three present end-loading ferries able to load or unload vehicles at one time. The parking area at the St. Ignace dock handles only about 100 vehicles and during peak traffic periods cars and trucks must line up on US-2, the main street in St. Ignace. The present dock is not wide enough to handle a vessel the size of the new ferry nor is the water deep enough at that point. The new dock will have two slips that will permit loading and unloading of two end-loading ships at one time, with additional docking space at both sides of the dock for side-loading vessels. The two slips will amply accommodate the huge ice-breaker ferry under construction for the State Highway Department at the Great Lakes Engineering corporation in River Rouge as well as the three end-loading vessels now in service. The ice breaker is scheduled to be completed and go into service sometime during the summer of 1951.

The new dock will have an adjacent parking area that will handle upwards of 500 vehicles and thus eliminate the necessity of parking on highway US-2 or city streets should traffic increase. The point there are waiting periods such as the Fourth of July and Labor Day.

The excavation for the basin is scheduled to be completed September 1, 1950. Some 194,300 yards of material are to be removed from it in order to secure a depth of 20 to 22 feet below the water level. Construction of the new dock and addition of the new ice breaker to the State Highway Department fleet will make the culmination of long efforts by Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler to speed up traffic across the Straits during rush periods. The new ferry and docking facilities will speed up operations of the ferries and generally eliminate waiting periods.

The keel for the new State ferry was laid Monday at the Great Lakes Engineering corporation shipyards in River Rouge. Fabrication of steel for the ship has been under way for three months. The new ship will have power equivalent to that of the U. S. Coast Guard ice-breaker Mackinaw, now recognized as the most powerful ship on the Great Lakes. It is designed for loading and unloading at both ends. It will have 4 diesel engines with a total of 10,000 horsepower. It will carry about 150 vehicles with a passenger capacity of 650 persons. Twin propellers fore and aft will permit it to shuttle back and forth across the Straits without turning around at either Mackinaw City or St. Ignace. This feature will eliminate delays in turning around and docking.

The ship will be 360 feet in length with a beam of 75 feet and it will draw 15 to 16 feet of water. Its speed will be about 15 miles per hour. The new ferry will have extra heavy construction to stiffen the hull and prevent damage to it during ice-breaking operations in the winter months. It will be equipped with ship-to-shore radio telephones and radar.

The contract price of the new vessel is $4,314,000. It will augment the present State Ferry fleet of four ferries during the ice-free months of the year and will handle winter traffic across the Straits, replacing the railroad car ferry Sainte Marie.

From the Desk of Representative Emil A. Peliz.

As I sit here in Lansing conscientiously pondering over the many problems that confront us in the State, and desirous of solving them in a way suitable to the majority of the people, I wonder how much thought you give to these same problems.

I fully realize how puzzling the whole situation must be to you. You read the newspapers and listen to the radio reports of conflicting opinions from both Washington and Lansing. You hear on the one side those that advocate more spending. They justify their stand by promising better state services and their arguments sound good, especially to those who are in the class that is dependent on such services. Then you get the other side of the picture from those who would practice economy and they justify their stand with arguments that appeal to that portion of our people who represent the already overburdened taxpayer. To the average person who is busy on the farm, or in his job, or with other affairs of his own, and does not have time to thoroughly study these problems, the whole situation must be very confusing. So many of you say, "Oh I don't understand what it is all about. It's too deep for me. As long as I get along all right, won't worry about it."

The time has come when you must change your attitude and give some serious thought to the affairs of your government—national, state and local. Pause for a while, and let me give you some simple figures and facts that you can understand. Beginning with George Washington, thirty-two presidents in 156 years including World War I and including eight years of the Roosevelt administration spent a total of $179,620,000,000. We will skip the extraordinary expenditures of World War II in the years 1941 to 1945. But beginning with the fiscal year 1946 and ending with 1949, we find that the present administration has spent $191,100,000,000. In 1932 our Federal Government spent 4 1/2 billion dollars. For the year 1950, it is estimated that our Federal Government will spend ten times that amount—45 billion dollars.

Now let us see how much money that is. If everyone in the United States would cash in all of his life insurance policies the total would amount to 44 billion dollars. This would not be enough to run the government for one year. About 11 million city families own their own homes. If they were all sold for cash the total would amount to about 30 billion dollars. This amount would run the government for 8 months. If the 4 million farmers sold their farms at 12 million dollars and their tools and livestock for the valued 8 billion dollars the total of 25 billion dollars would operate our government for less than 7 months.

If every manufacturing corporation converted its capital into cash the total of 39 billion dollars would run the government for less than 11 months. In 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was then a candidate for president, had this to say about government spending: "Any government, like any family, can for a year spend a little more than it earns. But you and I know that a continuance of that habit means the poorhouse."

Those words were spoken 17 years ago. In fifteen out of the past seventeen years our Federal government spent more than it collected. The result: A 250 billion dollar national debt. The problem is not confined to the National government only. Next week I shall give you some information of interest regarding your State and local governments.

EX-GOVERNOR KELLY

gasoline tax." Closely allied to the roads and of vital importance to this area is the tourist industry. The ex-governor, a lover of the north and a summer resident of Gaylord, restated his stand that this business must be encouraged, supported and expanded.

"The tourist industry is important, not only to the north, which depends on it for livelihood, but to the entire state, which depends on the north for markets and recreation."

The ex-governor reiterated the stand he made while governor that education support must be increased and public and mental health facilities must be expanded.

Mr. Kelly became a candidate for nomination for governor at the request of large numbers of people who are interested in having the administration at Lansing become the "voice of the people," a group who are interested in having the governor be an executive only.

"We have a government which is set up in three distinct departments, an executive, a legislative, and a judicial. Each should do its own job and not interfere with the other. A governor is an administrator and should not in any way try to dictate to the legislature," stated Mr. Kelly definitely.

Mr. Kelly is convinced that the present legislature is in the process of putting its financial affairs in shape.

"They have a big job," he said, "but they are working hard and faithfully and we need have no fears as to the outcome."

Ex-governor Kelly is a candidate for nomination as governor for the Republican party. He served Michigan as governor for two terms, 1938-1941, the only governor to serve two consecutive terms in forty years.

He states "I will serve the people of Michigan faithfully and to the best of my ability and under no circumstances, if I am elected, will I resign to accept another position. I promise, I will serve my full two years until midnight of the last day."

The ex-governor spoke before more than 50 people at a Kelly-for-Governor Club banquet held at Shoppens Inn Saturday evening. John H. Peterson and his committee made the arrangements for the banquet.

Charles E. Moore served as toastmaster and introduced both Mr. and Mrs. Kelly. Mayor A. L. Roberts welcomed ex-Governor Kelly to Grayling. Grover Cox sang several selections accompanied by his daughter, Nancy, at the piano, after which the ex-governor addressed the group.

The ideas of May are almost here, and the Michigan State Legislature is still in special session.

Since March 1 when legislators assembled at the Capitol a virtual tug-of-war has prevailed between the Republican dominated legislature and Governor G. Mennen Williams.

Using his constitutional right to limit legislation in a special session, Governor Williams has ruled that approximately $112 million in additional government spending must be financed, if at all, by a state income tax on corporation profits. The Governor declined to permit the legislature to increase the gasoline and weight tax in 1951, as advocated by good road boosters, saying that this need, too, should be paid by business from its profits.

By and large the legislative program of the Governor seems to be an echo of the "fair deal" of President Truman, as applied to Michigan. The Governor is building a platform for re-election around the theme of "liberalism."

The list of public benefits which would be financed by business out of its profits is long and imposing. Practically every form of economic activity in the state would be affected.

As we have pointed out before, there is not a chinaman's chance or even a chance in a carload that the legislature will nod acquiescence to William's radical proposals, especially those from areas, have been taken to hold to the belief that the age Michigan taxpayer is not from taxes and would welcome genuine movement to reform nomy in government.

While Democrat leaders to the Truman re-election as that economy is not popular by the contrast that government spending is here to stay, the public finance leaders, legislature have put the parable not to levy a new tax, not to increase government spending in 1950.

When the needs of an expanding population and the cries of the pressure groups are considered more than apparent the Republicans have undertaken deliver a miracle. Already demands are pouring into the legislative halls to make an exact for this worthy cause and public need. As there is a merit to all needs, according to your individual viewpoint, more than obvious that the publicans will have to hold line rigorously, economize everyone, if they are to achieve the difficult objective.

Republican committee chairman point out that considerable has been consumed since March when the legislature began special session, in preparing a get to fit anticipated rate during the coming fiscal (July 1, 1950-51). The one budget prepared for Governor Williams was approximately million in the red as based anticipated state income from ing taxes. This has been su to more than $112 million by tion of new requests for spending.

The general record of legislative bodies, whether congress or state legislature, has been to economy but to vote spending. At Washington congress has to prune expenditures. The liberals are urging more appropriations to take of rising unemployment and finance new welfare benefits. country is being told by George, Democrat, that the committee on internal revenue which he is chairman estimates the total deficit for the next fiscal years at $14 billions.

Pinched by the sales tax amendment which is to back 78 per cent of sales taxes to home government legislature has the disavowal of balancing the budget incurring a deficit. The W strategy is in reality pin squeeze on his opposition sure for more spending and lution for additional income than a tax on business profits.

FIRST FLYING SAUCER? This low-powered flying model of the XF5U-1 "flying wing" may be the forerunner of the flying saucers which have stirred up much controversy. The subject took on new interest when a national magazine and a prominent radio commentator announced that saucers are actually American top-secret military machines. Both navy and air force quit. It denied that it is building revolutionary craft that it has for the flying saucer.

OUT OF THE FIRE INTO THE FLOOD... An unidentified and struggling man braves a current of water on New York's Woolworth building 12th floor during a spectacular blaze in one of the city's tallest buildings. The blaze gained enough headway to sweep the entire 23rd floor with the result that water used to combat it inflicted heavy damage upon floors below the 23rd. New York firemen from several fire stations battled for more than an hour to bring the fire under control. No lives were lost and no one was reported seriously injured.
